Protesters call on advertisers to pull their ads from Fox News

Following controversial comments by TV anchors, multiple advertisers have removed or halted ads.

Advertisements featuring Fox News personalities, including Tucker Carlson, adorn the front of the News Corporation building on Wednesday in New York City. On Wednesday the network's sales executives hosted an event for advertisers to promote Fox News. Fox News personalities Tucker Carlson and Jeanine Pirro have come under criticism in recent weeks for controversial comments, and multiple advertisers have pulled away from their shows.

Calif. governor halts death penalty: 'I couldn't sleep'

2 California Gov. Gavin Newsom on Wednesday imposed a moratorium on the death penalty as the possibility of the first executions in the state in 13 years loomed. Statistics suggesting that at least one of the 737 inmates on the state's death row was innocent sealed the deal. "I couldn't sleep at night," he said at the state capitol. Newsom signed an executive order granting reprieves to death row inmates and closing the state's execution chamber. No death row inmates will be released. Newsom said he decided to make the move because elements of the death penalty, stalled in California since 2006, were suddenly moving forward on his watch. Newsom said he had anticipated that within a month he would have been asked to sign off on a new protocol for administering lethal injections to death row inmates, clearing the way for executions to begin again.

Digital sports network DAZN to start running ads

3 Digital sports network DAZN, which launched in September with the aim of disrupting traditional sports media broadcasting, will start running advertisements sometime in 2019, the company said on Wednesday. Until now, DAZN, pronounced "Da Zone," has been ad-free. This year it will introduce ads from German carmaker Volkswagen AG and brewery Krombacher, as well as a unit of Malta's Tipico Group Ltd. and GVC

Holdings Plc subsidiary bwin Interactive Gaming AG, both of which are offshore sports betting operators. Headquartered in the United Kingdom, DAZN operates live and on-demand streaming content in Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, Spain, Japan, Canada, the United States and plans to launch soon in Brazil. The consumer-facing content provider DAZN was part of a larger media and social gaming group called Perform Group.

8 Killed, including 5 kids, in Brazil gun rampage

4 Two gunmen wearing face masks entered a Brazilian school on Wednesday and shot and killed at least five teenagers who were on their snack breaks, as well as two school officials, before fatally turning their guns on themselves, police said. Before entering the Raul Brasil school in the Sao Paulo city of Suzano, the assailants, aged 17 and 25 and both former pupils, shot and killed the owner of a car rental agency from which they had stolen a vehicle. Ten people, including the gunmen, were killed in total, Sao Paulo police said. The students who died were mostly 15 and 16 years old. It was not yet known why the gunmen attacked the school, where about 1,000 children aged 11 to 16 attend classes. Police Commander Marcelo Salles said that in his over three decades of service, he had "never seen anything like this, it was an unspeakably brutal crime."

President Trump's former campaign chairman Paul Manafort.

3½ More years added to Manafort prison sentence

Manafort will now be imprisoned for six years and nine months.

President Donald Trump's former campaign chairman Paul Manafort was sentenced on Wednesday to about 3½ more years in prison by a judge who assailed him over his lies and criminal behavior, then was hit with a new indictment in New York on a fresh set of charges outside the reach of a potential presidential pardon.

The sentence by U.S. District Judge Amy Berman Jackson in Washington, adding to one given by a different judge in Virginia last week, means Manafort will spend six years and nine months behind bars, after being credited for nine months already served in an important chapter of Special Counsel Robert Mueller's investigation into Russia's role in the 2016 U.S. election.

Jackson sentenced Manafort, a veteran Republican political operative who earned millions of dollars working for pro-Russia politicians in Ukraine, to six years and one month for two conspiracy counts to which he pleaded guilty in September 2018 related to money laundering, unregistered lobbying and attempted witness tampering.

Jackson said 2½ years of her sentence will run at the same time as the sentence in Virginia, where he was given 47 months in prison after being convicted by a jury of tax evasion and bank fraud in another case prosecuted by Mueller.

Just minutes after Jackson read her sentence, the Manhattan district attorney unveiled a separate indictment of Manafort charging him with residential mortgage fraud and other New York state crimes. The charges are especially significant because unlike federal crimes they cannot be erased by a presidential pardon, a prospect the Republican Trump has not ruled out for Manafort.

"No one is beyond the law in New York," District Attorney Cyrus Vance, a Democrat, said in a state-

The 16-count indictment accused Manafort and others of falsifying business records to fraudulently obtain millions of dollars in mortgages. The allegations appeared to mirror some of the fraud charges in his Virginia trial.

Unlike at his sentencing hearing last week, Manafort said he was sorry for his actions, but Jackson then told him his expression of remorse rang hollow. Jackson told Manafort that he had lied repeatedly and committed fraud repeatedly, and there was no good explanation for the leniency he sought.

"Saying 'I'm sorry I got caught' is not an inspiring plea for leniency," Jackson told Manafort, who was brought into the courtroom in a wheelchair because of a condition called gout.

Jackson could have given Manafort up to 10 years in prison in the Washington case — five for each of the two conspiracy counts.

"I am sorry for what I have done and for all the activities that have gotten us here today."

Paul Manafort

"I am sorry for what I have done and for all the activities that have gotten us here today," Manafort told Jackson.

"This case has taken everything from me already — my properties, my cash, my life insurance, trust accounts for my children and grandchildren, and even more," Manafort added.

"The defendant's insistence that none of this should be happening to him ... is just one more thing that is inconsistent with the notion of any genuine acceptance of responsibility," the judge told Manafort.

Why Aren't Doctors Telling Knee Arthritis Sufferers About These Two Often Successful Treatments?

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

NYC - If you suffer with knee arthritis pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications. With minimal or no results

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis a lot of knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers. Patients travel from all over the state to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation - the good and the bad....

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid."

Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during viscosupplementation treatments... doctors precisely inject directly into the knee joint.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the procedure is slightly off, the formula will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NYC Pain MD use advanced digital imaging so they visually guide the injection accurately into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that performing joint injections without imaging miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have had prior viscosupplementation without this special digital imaging without good results - this may be the exact reason why.

That's why NYC Pain MD even takes it one step further. They do not just use one form of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation "medicines" also come in several different formulas.

Just like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. While many doctors only use one formula, the experts at NYC Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what the best one is for you.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

#2 Radiofrequency Neurotomy

This treatment is called, "Radiofrequency Neurotomy." RF for short. RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are known as "Genicular nerves."

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to the Genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, Genicular Neurotomy (GRF) is performed for long term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published November 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1, 4 and 12 weeks, respectively. No patient reported a post-procedure adverse event during the follow-up period. RF neurotomy of

Advanced Imaging Allows Doctors To Pin-Point Treatments And Relieve Knee Arthritis Pain

Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers? Research shows joint injections done without advanced imaging miss the joint about 30% of the time. Now doctors can put lubricating fluid directly into the arthritis joint that may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

Genicular nerves leads to significant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee OA pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication, physical rehab or viscosupplementation do not offer good enough results.

RF may be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

But - RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be debilitating and this procedure may be the only thing that helps and give you after surgery relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like to schedule a screening, just call 877-380-8537.

The screenings fill up fast every month. This screening is no cost and there absolutely no obligation.

More good news: for qualified candidates, insurances and Medicare often cover these treatments.

The president announced the grounding of all Boeing 737 MAX 8 jets.

US grounds 737 MAX jets, Boeing shares fall again

Citing safety concerns, President Trump announced the grounding of Boeing's 737 MAX jets.

President Donald Trump on Wednesday said the United States would ground Boeing Co.'s 737 MAX jets, following Europe and other nations that have already stopped the planes flying due to safety concerns after an Ethiopian Airlines crash on Sunday, the second such disaster in fewer than five months.

It was the second time the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration has halted flights of a Boeing plane in six years. It had grounded the 787 Dreamliner due to problems with smoking batteries in 2013.

Shares of the world's biggest plane maker, which were up earlier in the session, fell 2 percent to $370.48. Shares had fallen about 13 percent since Sunday's crash, losing about $32 billion of market value.

"We're going to be issuing an emergency order of prohibition to ground all flights of the 737 MAX 8 and the 737 MAX 9 and planes associated with that line."

President Trump

Shares of Southwest Airlines Co., which has the largest fleet of 737 MAX aircraft, fell 0.4 percent.

"We're going to be issuing an emergency order of prohibition to ground all flights of the 737 MAX 8 and the 737 MAX 9 and planes associated with that line," Trump told reporters at the White House.

"The FAA is prepared to make an announcement very shortly regarding the new information and physical evidence that we have received from the site, and from other locations and through a couple of other complaints," he said.

Boeing said in a statement that it supported the move to temporarily ground 737 MAX operations.

Meanwhile, Germany's federal agency responsible for investigating air accidents will not analyze the black box from the Ethiopian Airlines plane that crashed, casting uncertainty over the process.

REUTERS

of finding out what may have caused the disaster.

"This is a new type of aircraft with a new black box, with new software. We can't do it," said Germout Freitag, a spokesman for Germany's Federal Bureau of Aircraft Accident Investigation (BFU).

The move leaves unclear the destination of the black box, which may yield vital details of what caused the plane to plunge to the ground, killing 157 people.

Canada also grounded 737 MAX jets on Wednesday, saying satellite data suggested similarities to a previous crash involving the same plane model.

Countries around the world had already grounded the 737 MAX jets or banned them from flying over their airspace since the Ethiopian Airlines flight crashed soon after taking off from Addis Ababa.

The still-unexplained crash followed another involving a Boeing 737 MAX in Indonesia five months ago that killed 189 people. Although there is no proof of any link, the twin disasters have spooked passengers.

Canadian Transport Minister Marc Garneau told a news conference that Ottawa would stop 737 MAX 8 and 9 jets from leaving, arriving or flying over Canada.

He said satellite data suggested similarities between the flight profiles of the Ethiopian jet and that of a Lion Air plane of the same type that crashed in Indonesia last year. Both planes crashed shortly after takeoff.

Air Canada and rival Westjet Airlines operate a total of 37 Boeing 737 MAX jets.

Boeing has said it has full confidence in the 737 MAX, a model that has 371 jets in operation around the world.

Ethiopian Airlines spokesman Asrat Begashaw said it was still unclear what happened on Sunday, but its pilot had reported control issues — as opposed to external factors such as birds.

"The pilot reported flight control problems and requested to turn back. In fact he was allowed to turn back," he said. REUTERS

FROM SCREEN TO STAGE

HOW A HIT ANIMATED FILM BECAME A SMASH BROADWAY MUSICAL

IT ALL STARTED BEFORE THE MOVIE EVEN PREMIERED.

Thomas Schumacher, the president of Disney Theatrical Group, saw a rough cut of the FROZEN film and knew it would absolutely sing as a Broadway musical. The veteran producer, who has shepherded such long-running classics as The Lion King and Aladdin to the stage, recalled, "It was so Broadway-worthy."

Speaking at the show's pre-opening press event, he added that was "because of this extraordinary story of these two sisters who come together. But really it was about the music. It was an animated film with an absolutely proper Broadway score."

The film turned out to be an Oscar-winning, runaway hit, becoming the top-grossing animated movie ever, and Schumacher tapped the original creative team—Academy Award-winning composers Kristen Anderson-Lopez and Robert Lopez (who's also a three-time Tony winner) and Oscar-winning writer Jennifer Lee—to bring Arendelle to life at Broadway's legendary St. James Theatre, home of the original productions of groundbreaking musicals like Oklahoma!, Hello, Dolly! and The Producers.

Completing the artistic team were an esteemed group of Tony-winning theatrical talents, including director Michael Grandage, designer Christopher Oram and choreographer Rob Ashford.

As the Broadway show was being developed, FROZEN transformed in sometimes significant, sometimes subtle ways. The composers filled out the score with twelve new songs. Puppet designer Michael Curry re-imagined Sven as an awe-inspiring reindeer commandeered by a performer who walks on all fours. And the creators deepened the relationship between sisters Anna and Elsa, exploring their search for true love and self-discovery.

Plus, the landscape of FROZEN became very real through sets and costumes inspired by the film but rendered theatrically, where Swarovski crystals form Elsa's icy world and a stunning quick change elicits gasps and cheers during "Let It Go."

The result is a show that's familiar yet wholly new, funny yet tremendously moving.

And right at home on Broadway.

Overcoming the costs of hearing loss

Connect Hearing, a national hearing care provider, is leading the charge to make quality hearing solutions more affordable for Americans suffering from hearing loss.

48 million Americans are significantly affected by hearing loss, and yet, just 14 percent of those who could benefit from hearing aids use them.¹ Studies have shown that the cost of hearing aids is a huge reason that many have not adopted them.

Unfortunately, this leaves tens of millions of Americans feeling isolated, frustrated, and earning lower incomes² due to decreased effectiveness in the workplace. It also increases risks of depression, decline in memory and concentration, and early-onset dementia.³ More than 100 years ago, Helen Keller, who was both deaf and blind, explained the isolation caused by hearing loss: "Blindness separates people from things. Deafness separates people from people."

In good news, Connect Hearing, a leading national network of hearing care centers, has worked with a world leading hearing aid manufacturer to ensure that advanced hearing solutions are available to all, regardless of their financial means. This has led to the limited release of the NovaSense EliteTM hearing aid at the special price of $499. This includes custom programming to suit each wearer's unique hearing needs. Connect Hearing is also offering a 45-day satisfaction guarantee and do not charge for hearing evaluations and fitting services.

This program has been met with great enthusiasm by Connect Hearing's dedicated team, including Doctor of Audiology, Pauline Dinsauer, who says, "It is great to work for an organization that is working for all Americans with hearing loss."

¹According to research published in the Journal of the American Academy on Hearing Loss, "Target Audition: A 2010 Study," the impact of untreated hearing loss on hearing aid use is significant. "As of 2010, 15% of hearing aid users and 10% of hearing aid non-users reported hearing loss."

Is Pyxa a fully functional console?

Yes, Pyxa is a fully functional game console which enables users to create their own video games. Pyxa comes as an all-inclusive do-it-yourself kit allowing users to build their game console and create their own video games whilst learning about coding.

Why did you create it?

Our main aim is to create exciting and fun devices to teach coding, artificial intelligence and electronics. Pyxa is our new product that was designed with this ideology in mind. Millions of people play video games and spend hours in front of their game consoles. However, only a negligible minority has an understanding of how video games are created and game consoles work. Pyxa is an ideal solution to demystify these concepts. By allowing users to build a game console and create video games, Pyxa brings fun and excitement to coding and electronics education.

How could people build a console?

Pyxa comes with a comprehensive assembly booklet that will guide you through every step of building a game console. Users will get familiar with each component of a game console and explore their functions. Getting to know the hardware thoroughly prior to coding provides a much better understanding of the overall device. Assembly is fairly simple and does not require any additional tools, special skills or soldering.

But how to create a video game?

Pyxa is an ideal way for new learners to explore coding and game development. A comprehensive educational guide comes along with Pyxa and guides the user through every step of creating a video game. Just like the assembly booklet, the educational guide is also aimed at new beginners and does not require any previous knowledge about coding. Users will easily adapt to Pyxa regardless of their level of experience. Pyxa is compatible with Windows, Mac OS and Linux, and can be programmed with the Arduino Software (IDE). Both new learners and experienced programmers will start creating their own first video game in just an hour.

MAKERBUINO

This small gadget is an open source handheld game device that you can build by yourself. MAKERbuino is also an educational device shaped like a game console, that seeks to motivate people to explore, learn and create something new in a fun and interesting way.

SAINSMART

This DIY console has a long control area. It is open source, so that you can modify the codes and play the games you like on it. SainSmart comes with 4 retro games: Tetris, Snake, Racing, Shooting, that will bring you back to the 90s.

2048 is an open-source game console. It comes as an all-inclusive do-it-yourself kit that allows to build it and create own video games whilst learning about coding. Users are also able to share their games with others through a cloud.

ALL PHOTOS PROVIDED

GAMEBUINO

Although this console is already assembled, it is an excellent option to encode and make your own video games. The console itself is a development tool that allows you to easily make a game in a progressive and simple way. Code on your computer and see the result directly on the console.

Finding the fairy tale

Aronson helped create the popular musical "Rent."

Billy Aronson talks his versatile career with shows like "Rent" and "Peg and Cat."

MOLLY GIVEN
MollyGiven@metro.us

Billy Aronson wears many hats. The skilled playwright and writer has been a huge force in many notable plays and television shows for years, quietly and tenaciously putting out incredible content for audiences of all ages. Aronson is best known for helping to create the smash hit musical "Rent," and also helping to create and write for other wildly popular children's shows such as "Courage the Cowardly Dog," "Codename: Kids Next Door," "The Backyardigans," "Peg and Cat" and many more. Aronson sat down with Metro to discuss his career, his outlook on life and how speaking from your heart is the most important tool you have.

Aronson is used to being versatile in his career, which has made his writing so transparent and relatable. "I always think the best stories are true for everybody, like a great fairy tale," says Aronson. "Think of great picture books like 'The Giving Tree' or 'Where the Wild Things Are' — there's something for everyone there."

But Aronson does always keep in mind exactly who his audience is. "I wrote for 'Beavis and Butt-head' and lots of plays for grown-ups that had adult themes. I gravitate toward certain themes that are adult. But for young kids, it very much feels the same," says Aronson. "If you're doing a play for an audience that doesn't speak English, you don't use English — you have to use a language people understand. You don't change what you're saying and you don't change who you are as a speaker. For me, there's always a certain goofiness. Even with grown-up plays, there's something goofy. You could even call it juvenile if you want."

Having that sense of goofiness has proved to be a successful tool when writing his shows. Aronson's "Peg and Cat" has received critical acclaim and recently has been turned into a stage show that is touring major cities in the country now. "At a party, I tend to relate to the littlest kid in the room, even when there are grown-ups there. It's my sense of humor and physical comedy and goofiness. I really make a good friend of that four-year-old in the room. At the same time, I want to tell the truth. I don't talk down to kids."

Keeping that in mind, Aronson always tries to implement his outlook on life in his work. "Some endings to my shows — for example, 'Peg and Cat' — are happy. But that's really how I look at the world. I have a cheerful outlook. I see the world in a positive way. I'm not faking it and I don't feel like I'm making something up by presenting these stories in which love saves things," says Aronson. "I don't make it easy, I don't cheat. I hope I'm not sentimental and melodramatic. I think I tell stories that are true, like a good fairy tale. If you want to get to this happy ending, you have to sacrifice this and that. You have to earn it."

It's hard to imagine shifting from creating hard-hitting stories for adults to writing light-hearted stories for children, but Aronson has mastered both. Plus, the different spectrums of his writing style are more similar than you think. "I'm not foolish enough to put sex in a pre-K show like 'Peg and Cat,' or put an elementary math equation into 'Rent.' But there's a basis with these stories that are centered around true friends. Both of those stories really are about friendship, and they both have music that I love and clever lyrics. It basically comes down to speaking from your heart as a writer."

Speaking from his heart is what has launched Aronson's career and kept his success afloat and abundant. "I used to do a lot of different money gigs and I found you just can't do it unless you write what you love. Whatever the project is, however silly it might seem or commercial, if you can't find a way to have it intersect where your heart is, you won't do it very well."

Aronson regularly works with popular kids programs. ALL PHOTOS GETTY

How I ditched debt: side jobs, meal planning and faith

NerdWallet is a personal finance website.

Jamie Griffin's dream teaching job came at a cost: Graduating from college in 2011 with degrees in teaching and history left him burdened with $45,000 in student loan debt. Struggling to make the monthly payments, he switched from a 10-year to a 25-year repayment plan. But it wasn't enough to stop his bank account from bleeding.

In summer 2013, Jamie had a meaningful discussion about the future with his close friend and colleague, Jenna. Both envisioned becoming financially savvy, getting married and starting families. Facing over $100,000 in debt combined, those dreams seemed distant. At the time, they were middle school paraprofessionals (teaching assistants) each earning $19,000 a year after taxes.

So the two decided to make some changes. They created budget spreadsheets, cut spending and took up extra work — at one point, working seven jobs between them. As their relationship turned romantic, the Duluth, Minnesota, couple blended their budgets and began tackling debt as a team.

Now, Jamie, 32, and Jenna, 31, are debt-free and proud parents of a baby girl. They're freely pursuing other financial goals, and Jamie blogs about their journey at Mr. Jamie Griffin. They recently connected with NerdWallet to share their experience, which may inspire you to pay off debt.

What was your total debt when you started? What is your debt today?
Jenna: We had $4,500 of credit card debt, $6,000 in car loans and $90,000 of student loan debt. Today, we are debt-free (minus a mortgage).

How did you end up in debt?

Jamie: When I applied for college, I had hardly any money saved and my parents basically couldn't contribute anything. I knew I'd need to take out loans, but I figured that was just the cost of going to college. Almost everyone I knew was taking out loans.

"Seeing a mountain of debt and being able to chip away at it and celebrate successes along the way was really motivating for us."

Jamie Griffin

I initially opened my credit card to pay for gas. I wanted to build up some credit and people told me that was a great way to do it. Before I knew it, I was using my credit card to buy more than gas and wasn't paying it off every month like I planned. Then, the transmission on my car broke and I used my card to pay for it.

Jenna: I opened my credit card in high school to start building credit. ... Eventually, my spending got out of hand and I used my card more and more. I wasn't making enough money to pay it off at the end of the month, but didn't change my spending habits.

I didn't see any other option to pay for college other than taking out loans. My family couldn't contribute much and I didn't have enough money, either. I accepted the maximum amount for each loan that the financial aid office offered and used the money to pay for rent, groceries, gas and any other expenses that I had.

What triggered your decision to start getting out of debt?

Jamie: I knew I wanted to be a husband that had control on money, could balance a budget and live financially responsible. ... Jenna inspired me to learn how to make a budget and that research led me to discover the debt snowball.

Jenna: I felt a lot of shame about my student loans and spending habits. I was embarrassed to bring $45,000 of student loan debt into my future marriage. It was like a weight that crushed me, and I didn't want that to be my life forever.

The Griffins with daughter Adalynn
Down the road, we knew we both wanted to start a family. With a $922 minimum student loan payment, a baby and day care were out of the question until we paid off our loans.

What steps did you take to reduce your debt?

Jamie: We started living on a budget. It was really simple, but it helped us track our expenses and get a realistic idea of how much we were spending every month. If something didn't bring us value or align with our goals, we cut it from the budget.

We didn't realize we were spending $300 to $500 a month just eating out. Our rule became if we can't buy it from a grocery store and it doesn't fit into our $50 a week food budget, we can't get it. We learned how to meal prep like pros. We cooked all of our meals on Sunday night and ate leftovers all week long.

We also knew we had to increase our income. We worked any extra job we could to make more money. ... We were both teaching, coaching a sport, working front desk at a hotel, and Jenna worked [in retail]. Eventually, we upgraded from the hotel to be a bartender and server at a fine dining Italian restaurant. [The Griffins eventually transitioned to full-time teaching jobs and received bonuses.]

It seems weird and counterintuitive, but we believe a huge reason we're debt-free today is because we tithed every month [the Griffins give 10% of their income to their church]. Trusting God did so much with our finances and he blessed us over and over again.

How did the debt snowball work for you? (With debt snowball, you pay off the smallest debt first, then roll the amount you were paying toward your bigger debts.)

Jamie: Seeing a mountain of debt and being able to chip away at it and celebrate successes along the way was really motivating for us. I had a student loan that was $32,000 and had the highest interest rate, about 6.5%. If we had attacked that one right away, it would have taken forever to pay off. We knew we could get a couple quick wins within the first year, whereas it would have taken us many years to get a win [using other methods]. We paid off my smallest student loan first, which took four months.

What did your budgeting process look like?

Jamie: We discovered Dave Ramsey pretty early on and kind of adopted his baby-step system. We saved our $1,000 emergency fund as the first step, then started working on our debt as much as we could. After we started doing extra jobs, all that extra money went toward our loans.

We could have been debt-free a few months earlier, but for us, it was really important to buy a house, so we [temporarily] diverted some of those funds. Every month, we put a little bit of money into savings, no matter what.

Did you negotiate lower payments or get forgiveness from your creditors?

Jamie: Jenna and I had one loan each that qualified for federal loan forgiveness. Mine was a really big loan of $32,000. If I taught at a low-income school for five consecutive years, $5,000 would get forgiven. Jenna had a large loan with the same terms, but because she teaches science instead of history, hers would have $17,500 forgiven.

We paid off my loan because it was faster to do it like that than wait it out. With Jenna's loan, we just got the email and notification that it's been forgiven in full!

What challenges did you face along the way?

Jamie: It was hard to watch friends and family do so many things we wanted to do — go on vacation, spend weekends in hotels, upgrade vehicles, buy whatever food they wanted, go out to dinner, buy houses and start families — but we knew we had to wait.

We wanted all of it, especially starting a family. We dreamed of a snugly little baby for so long, and it hurt to wait because we couldn't afford it. We planned almost every purchase. Sometimes I just wanted to buy a damn coffee or a DQ Blizzard without checking in with my wife.

How has your life changed since you paid off debt?

Jamie: We've felt a lot more free. We don't feel the weight and baggage of debt and can use all of that extra money to invest, plan vacations, be more generous and afford daycare. But most of all, we've developed healthy habits and attitudes toward money. We learned a bunch of new skills that we can use for the rest of our lives.

Check out 'America's most romantic beach' at 'Tween Waters Island Resort & Spa

'Tween Waters Island Resort & Spa, located between the Gulf of Mexico and Pine Island Sound, boasts 13 picturesque acres of luxury resort, including an extensive stretch of sugary, white-sand beach named "America's Most Romantic Beach" by Travelocity.

What began as a collection of fishing cottages dating from 1931 now includes 137 units and cottages that range from standard guest rooms, studios and three-bedroom suites to two- and three-bedroom historic cottages. Decorated in a rustic luxury style, many of the 19 historic cottages are named after the resort's famous past visitors, including Anne Morrow Lindbergh, J.N. "Ding" Darling and Theodore Roosevelt.

The rooms certainly are comfortable and cozy, but most visitors come to 'Tween Waters for the miles of unsullied beaches on its Gulf of Mexico side. Captiva and its sister island, Sanibel, are known to have some of the best shelling beaches in the world. You'll see many guests bent in the "Captiva Crouch," searching for the perfect specimens for hours on end.

"'Tween Waters Inn is 'Captiva's Must Stay' but we think you might call it 'Captiva's Mustn't Leave'"

Florida Travel + Life

If you aren't the sun-soaking type, 'Tween Waters features a range of activities to keep things lively; the marina offers chartered boats, seaplanes, canoes and kayak rentals for island or deep sea fishing, shelling, touring or eco-adventures. The Gulf and sound are also known for their stock of fish, dolphins, and manatees. Take it nice and easy on a stand-up paddleboard adventure, or take a fast track in a jet ski rental.

This 85-plus-year-old resort has a deep history, but still delivers the amenities of any modern luxury resort. Try lounging at the calm and quiet "serenity" pool, or soak up the sun and fun in the Olympic-sized pool area with your tropical drink from the active Oasis Pool Bar. Head indoors to the remodeled day spa for a manicure, pedicure, or hair styling, or enjoy a relaxing individual or couple's massage overlooking the property.

In the evening, enjoy the historic, award-winning and newly renovated Old Captiva House, which hosts a range of gourmet dishes, or try the Crow's Nest Beach Bar & Grille, a local favorite for casual dining.

For family fun, on Monday and Thursday nights from October to mid-August, young and old flock to the Crow's Nest on property to view the popular Captiva Crab Races. Be prepared to get a little wet and be insulted by the comic host.

Doing your due diligence before flying

In light of the recent Boeing 737 MAX plane crash in Ethiopia, the world is beginning to demand answers from airlines.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metu.se

In light of the horrific Boeing 737 MAX 8 plane crash over the weekend in Ethiopia that killed 157 people, many airlines are choosing to ground all of these planes in order to keep their passengers safe. This was the second crash involving one of these planes in a span of six months. Oddly enough, there are still a few airlines willing to roll the dice on keeping these planes up in the air.

According to the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), there are currently around 350 Boeing 737 MAX planes being flown by 54 different airlines around the world. The U.S. airlines that still use the 737 MAX in their everyday operations are American Airlines, Southwest Airlines and United Airlines.

Many international airlines have chosen to ground these planes for the time being. Recently, the TUI Group, a U.K. travel group that includes many airlines throughout Europe, announced via Twitter that it would ground all Boeing 737 MAX 8 planes across all of its airlines. Some countries, such as Canada and the U.K., are even taking the additional step of prohibiiting these planes from entering their airspace altogether. With mounting pressure to enact similar changes, President Trump announced on Wednesday an order to ground all 737 MAX 8 and 9 planes in the U.S.

So how can people take control and do the research into their modes of transportation so that they can avoid this sort of cataclysmic situation? After all, Boeing reportedly had been completely confident in the product it was producing. According to Business Insider, the 737 MAX was, initially, a massive success for Boeing with 4,699 orders in their books since the plane's unveiling in 2017.

But with two eerily similar and deadly crashes within such a short period of time, this seems like a watershed moment for air travel. In order to soothe the minds of rightfully skeptical travelers, the travel booking site Kavak has developed a brand-new filter that will now allow passengers from all over the world to book flights excluding certain problematic aircraft in their searches.

If you have already booked a flight, however, you might want to start doing your own research on your reservation, if you happen to be flying out of one of those countries that has come to its senses. By using the TripAdvisor affiliate site SeatGuru, you will be able to enter your existing flight information — i.e., reservation number, airline, date, etc. — and receive greater detail on your flight, including the brand and model of the aircraft you are flying on.

While it is impossible to predict the future or even trust the concept of flying ever again, knowing that there are ways for passengers to do their due diligence ahead of their flights is going to change the industry for the better.

'Little-brother' Jets poised to blow by now-hapless Giants

The New York City-area NFL franchises are moving in two very different directions this offseason.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The Jets have spent a majority of their existence in the shadow of their co-tenants, the Giants, as the little brother of the New York City-area football scene.

Usually the punchline of all jokes in the NFL, the Jets have made mediocrity the mundane as they've kept their fans on what is now a 50-year wait for a return to the Super Bowl. To put it plainly, the embarrassments have far outnumbered the triumphs.

In the meantime, the Giants have celebrated four Super Bowl titles over the past 33 years as they continued to build their brand as one of the proudest franchises in the NFL.

Well, that's all just ancient history, now.

The Jets are suddenly developing a powerhouse as general manager Mike Maccagnan has made all the right moves to save his job, so far, while the Giants are in full self-destruct mode.

Needless to say, the family dynamic around the Big Apple is changing.

After coming away with a resolute middle linebacker in CJ Mosley on Tuesday, the Jets pulled off a doozy of a deal by acquiring Le'Veon Bell.

The free-agent running back made his much-anticipated decision in the wee hours of Wednesday morning, agreeing to a four-year, $61 million deal with $35 million guaranteed, according to ESPN's Adam Schefter.

It's a worthy investment that will only help the development of second-year quarterback

Sam Darnold. While the Jets continue to look for a true No. 1 wide receiver, Bell is a legitimate option in the passing game out of the backfield. He's recorded 75 or more receptions in three of his last four seasons.

That's just an added bonus for his premier running style. The ultra-patient back possesses a supreme vision that finds open the running lanes within the trenches. He's eclipsed the 1,200-yard rushing mark in each of the last three seasons that he's played in at least 12 games while sporting a career average of 4.3 yards per carry. His 137.5 scrimmage yards per game since 2014 is the most in the NFL during that span.

That provides a serious upgrade from Elijah McGuire, Isaiah Crowell, and Bilal Powell, who combined to post the NFL's seventh-worst rushing attack in the Jets' backfield last season.

With Bell's addition to a franchise cornerstone that now features Mosley, Darnold, and safety Jamal Adams (just to name a few), the Jets are suddenly like the little brother that came back from his first year of college only to grow half a foot and put on 25 pounds of solid muscle.

And now they can totally kick big brother's butt.

Bell's deal would have been the largest move of the night had it not been for another the shocking move made by Giants general manager Dave Gettleman, who is quickly becoming one of the most maligned faces in New York sports.

The second-year executive traded away his best receiver and a generational talent in Odell Beckham Jr. to the Cleveland Browns for the 17th overall pick and a third-round selection in the 2019 draft along with safety Jabrill Peppers.

It's a questionable return for one of the game's greatest receivers while bringing an end to a head-scratching saga.

After flirting with the idea of trading Beckham last season, the Giants decided to reward Beckham with a five-year, $95 million extension that made him the richest wide receiver in NFL history at the time. While trade rumors persisted, Gettleman assured his team and the fan base that the Giants didn't sign the 26-year-old just to trade him.

That was a lie.

Beckham's departure is the largest item on Gettleman's growing rap sheet. He made the decision to retain veteran quarterback Eli Manning and his $23 million cap hit while allowing one of the top safeties in the game, Landon Collins, to walk in free agency and sign with the division-rival Redskins.

There will be a hope that Peppers can step in and replace Collins in the secondary, but it's a risky move by a general manager who clearly undervalues the safety position.

Regardless of that, the dealing of Beckham officially alerts the NFL that the Giants are in an all-out rebuild mode.

The problem is that it's a decision that came a year too late.

Because they signed Beckham to that monster extension, the Giants paid Beckham $21.5 million last season for just 12 games and will incur $16 million in dead money. That's $37.5 million that could have been reallocated to address larger needs like either of the lines, the secondary, or even an established replacement for Manning.

Now the Giants could be drafting a quarterback in either of the next two drafts where he'll be thrown on a team that is expected to be woefully bad. That might not even be the worst part as the team is basically admitting that they are prepared to waste the next two years of developing superstar running back Saquon Barkley, the lone bright spot of the organization.

Hopefully, the Giants don't mind the basement at MetLife Stadium because they'll be looking up at the Jets for a few years.

And little brother won't be minding that at all.

The fight against erectile dysfunction

Don't worry. It happens.
But there are ways to stop it!
By Pat King

Many men deal with the awkward physical disability commonly known as erectile dysfunction. As a matter of fact, it may be a more common drawback for more men than you may think. According to a study conducted by the Cleveland Clinic, roughly 52 percent of men experience erectile dysfunction in their day-to-day lives, with 40 percent of men age 40 experience it and 70 percent of men age 70. So what are some ways that you can combat this ... gulp... disappointing condition that affects so many men in the bedroom?

Eat and live right

As with many ailments, erectile dysfunction can be closely related to how much you exercise and how well you eat on a daily basis.

In a nutshell — by getting the right amount of cardio during the week, you will maintain a lower blood pressure which can help you to achieve healthier erections when it matters the most.

Eating right can also contribute to lowering your blood pressure with food like dark chocolate, pistachios, and watermelon all linked to lowering cholesterol and increasing the blood flow in the right areas. Some bad news for those who like the drink a few cocktails from time to time however is that drinking to excess has historically been linked to cases of erectile dysfunction. So try to cut back if you want to see improvements down there.

The importance of a healthy diet cannot be overstated in cases of erectile dysfunction as WebMD found. It is estimated that around "35-75% of men with diabetes will experience at least some degree of erectile dysfunction during their lifetime." On top of that, men with diabetes will develop ED 10 to 15 years before men without diabetes.

Cut out the problem at the root

While many pills and contraptions have been touted as the end all be all cures of this worrisome condition, few have produced the same exciting restorative results as the ErectionWave treatment. Created by board certified urologist, Dr. David Shusterman, this new innovative treatment has taken a different approach to this issue than, say, swallowing a couple viagras on a nightly basis. The most exciting aspect of this treatment is that it actually works to cure the real issues behind ED and not offering a temporary solution. By directing high frequency rays towards blood vessels that have been blocked, ErectionWave treatment will increase blood through these pathways to allow for stronger and longer lasting natural erections without the assistance of pills or useless penis pumps.

Another more direct erectile dysfunction cure is known as the Priapus Shot — or otherwise known simply as the "P-shot". This completely pain-free shot has been known to not only increase sex drive but increase the overall penis size to 3.5 centimeters. The shot gets these results by by kickstarting a man's own growth factors in his blood to recruit his body's own stem cells down to the penis causing quicker regeneration of tissue and blood vessels.

If you are interested in either of these groundbreaking treatments, make your appointment with Dr. Shusterman today by calling 212-661-0060.
